Families and Friends of the Class of 1991:

This is my first year as Chancellor at UMM, my first opportunity to preside at its commencement, an occasion for me to say to all of you how pleased I am to be here. The first graduating class with whom I have been involved and the occasion of their commencement will remain in my memory.

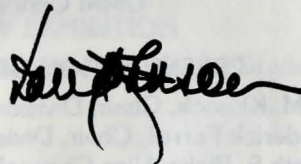

We can be proud of this institution. It truly is one of the nation's distinctive colleges. In part that is because of its curriculum, in part the selectivity of its student body, in part its determination to remain small, undergraduate and residential. But it is more than that. We are integral to the University of Minnesota, not a branch, but that great institution's autonomous residential liberal arts college. This Class of 1991 graduates today in the University's name; this faculty is appointed to its ranks. No other liberal arts college in the nation has our combination of geographical separation and yet organizational integration into a major public research university.

This nation is the envy of the world for its many small distinctive liberal arts colleges. The contributions of our graduates are beyond any predictions we would make from their proportions of the total national student population. There are forces in these small selective residential colleges with their focus upon teaching which have made them cauldrons of productivity. It is to the credit of the University of Minnesota and the vision of its Regents that they should have provided not only eminent graduate and professional faculties in the Twin Cities but a liberal arts college of such excellence here in Morris.

We are in a crucial stage of development here at UMM. The quality of our entering classes measured by the number of National Merit Scholars and University Presidential Scholars, by high school rank and test scores, continues to rise. We are cited in national publications as a "little public Ivy." We have the opportunity to be the national model for public liberal arts education. We can be a crucial link between our public tradition and the many private liberal arts colleges of the region.

Something more than test scores and high academic reputation distinguishes this place. I speak of the quality of student life here. I am increasingly impressed by the opportunities here to involve students in the governance of the campus. This commitment to preparation for leadership for our students is something we must cherish. That participatory quality is possible because of the determination of faculty and staff to make this an outstanding environment for our students.

The Class of 1991 has benefitted from the dedication and excellence of those who have worked here. I have shared in those benefits, particularly from the high credibility my predecessor, Jack Imholte, developed in the larger University of Minnesota. In this year of cutbacks in the funding of public higher education, the central administration of the University has determined that the Morris campus will have an increase in its funding base. That is a tribute to all who have been a part of this splendid academic community.

PRESIDENT'S OUTSTANDING MINORITY SCHOLARSHIPS

Entering freshmen who are recipients of the Morton S. Katz or the President's Outstanding Minority Scholarships are the inherent participants in the mentorship program. Scholars are paired one-on-one with a faculty mentor based on similarities between the mentor's data profile and the scholar's intended academic major, career or personal interests, or personal preferences. The ultimate goal is for the relationship to foster maximum achievement of personal, academic, and professional potential for the scholar.

American Academic Apparel

American academic apparel goes back in its essential features to the middle ages. The oldest northern European universities grew out of church schools. Both faculty and students were regarded as part of the clergy and wore clerical garb based upon monastic dress routinely, rather than merely on special occasions.

The head covering, developed from the skull cap, acquired a point on top, which gradually evolved into a tassel. In Europe the bonnet with tassel is still worn, but has been replaced in America by the mortar board with tassel.

The hood was originally worn over the head in bad weather and otherwise dropped onto the shoulders like a monk's cowl. First worn by both faculty and students, the hood became restricted to graduates in the early sixteenth century. Today the hood is lined with the official colors of the alma mater. In addition, the borders of most hoods are colored according to the scholarly field of the wearer. Some hood border colors are: maize (agriculture), white (arts, letters, humanities), drab (business), copper (economics), light blue (education), brown (fine arts), crimson (journalism), purple (law), lemon (library science), pink (music), apricot (nursing), silver gray (speech), dark blue (philosophy), sage green (physical education), salmon pink (public health), golden yellow (science), cream (social science), citron (social work), and scarlet (theology).

The gown seems to have been borrowed from the Benedictine monk's habit. In the middle ages, undergraduates, bachelors and masters could be distinguished by the simplicity or elaborateness of their gowns. The master's gowns were often furred, a decoration surviving as the three velvet bars now used on the voluminous sleeves of the doctoral gown.

On the Cover:

The Official Seal of the University of Minnesota Board of Regents includes an antique lamp, representing the metaphysical sciences; a telescope, representing the physical sciences; a plough, the industrial arts; and the palette and brushes, the fine arts.

The motto in Latin encircling these symbols is "Commune Vinculum Omnibus Artibus," which translates as "a common bond for all the arts."

Included in this program are the names of candidates eligible for graduation at the time of printing. The degree is officially granted after the final grades have been recorded and successful completion of all graduation requirements has been verified.

The University of Minnesota is committed to the policy that all persons shall have access to its programs, facilities, and employment without regard to race, creed, color, sex, handicap or national origin.

Program Coordinated and Prepared by University Relations Staff in conjunction with UMM Records Office, Admissions and Financial Aids Office and Functions and Awards Committee.

Printed by UMM Duplicating Services.
